

Facebook Burmese-group engagement audit

What the numbers mean

The repeated 13-share count closely matches distribution from each source Reel into other groups. It is therefore not a clean measure of organic audience sharing. Facebook did not expose reach, views, or numeric reaction counts on the audited pages.

Bottom line

The 25 August campaign currently has seven verified live placements across groups with 216,000 nominal memberships. Six placements remain pending and one group currently shows no posts by Jia Li. All seven live placements explicitly show no comments; no numeric reaction, share, or view count appears on the individual group posts.

The 14-group list totals 390,300 nominal memberships. Membership overlaps heavily between groups, so this is potential distribution scale - not unique reach.

Interpretation and audit notes

Shares are distribution-weighted

Each recovered source Reel shows 13 shares, matching the group's outreach pattern. These counts include the campaign's own group-sharing actions and should not be presented as organic reshares.

Zero comments is verified

Each of the three recovered Reels explicitly says there are no comments. The seven verified live posts in the 25 August campaign also explicitly show no comments.

Missing metrics are not zero

Facebook did not display numeric reaction counts, view counts, reach, impressions, or plays. The report labels these as not displayed instead of estimating them.

Membership is not reach

The 390,300 total sums group memberships. People may belong to several groups, and a group membership does not mean the post was shown to that member.

Status is page-based

Status was taken from the current message on the post page. Two URLs shaped like ordinary permalinks still displayed pending-admin-approval notices.

Source scope

This audit used Jia Li's Facebook activity history plus direct inspection of the recovered Reel and group-post pages in Safari on 5 September 2026. It is a current visible-state audit, not a Facebook Insights export.
